I agree that the above data will be listed in a public member directory. The publicly accessible member section on the DIS website<sup>1</sup> www.disarb.org shows a list of all members including the following information: Name, job title, professional address and contact details. You may choose (only for personal membership) a paid extended profile to provide additional information<sup>2</sup>, such as a profile picture, your professional focus and experience or languages skills. The publication on our website is intended to display DIS members' expertise in the area of alternative dispute resolution and arbitration. Promoting these means of dispute resolution forms part of the DIS' aims and objectives. We will remove your information from our member directory and the website upon your withdrawal of consent at any time (dis@disarb.org), or when your membership ends. I understand that my withdrawal will not be retroactive and will have no impact on my membership in general.*
